Supply Chain Management Club

Supply Chain Management Club members participate in a variety of professional, social, and community service activities. Students work closely with their "parent chapter" in the Fox Valley, an organization of over 400 professionals. Through trips to local organizations and businesses that include presentations and facilities tours, students have the opportunity to further investigate and refine their interest in the field of supply chain management. In addition to providing funds for scholarships, and paper competition, the parent chapter provides valuable networking opportunities which may lead to internships and jobs.
