

Seeking digital intern at the Sheboygan Sun Summer 2021

The Sheboygan Sun is looking for a digitally-focused intern this summer to handle a variety of content including helping write our popular daily morning newsletter, business and restaurant profiles, shooting photos and videos and posting news stories as needed.

The Sheboygan Sun, covering news and information in Sheboygan County, launched a new website in October 2020 and the reaction from our audience has been overwhelmingly positive. In just a few months we have built six-figure page views. We're seeking a digital intern to help us build on our momentum.

The position would be remote and you could work anywhere between 10-20 hours. You would work directly with a digital reporter and the company's Chief Content Officer. This opportunity would provide you hands-on learning, experience and feedback that would be beneficial for anyone considering a career in media or content.

The intern would handle a variety of content including helping write our popular daily morning newsletter, business and restaurant profiles, shooting photos and videos and posting news stories as needed.

We're seeking someone who enjoys creating content and wants to develop their skills in digital publishing and social media. This is an unpaid internship, but it can qualify for credit.

By or before April 9, please send a cover letter to David Arkin, Chief Content & Product Officer, at darkin@orourkemediagroup.com
