COURSE DESCRIPTION

Political Science 342 Gender, Law and Policy - The course offers students the opportunity to engage in a critical analysis of the relationship between law and gender that is grounded in court decisions and legal commentary and centered on competing theoretical frameworks of gender equality in a democratic society. The course does not assume prior background in political science, law, or women's studies; however, prior coursework in any of these areas will be helpful. Cross-listed: Political Science 342/ Women's and Gender Studies 342. Students may receive credit for only one of the two cross-listed courses. 3 credits

How do legal decisions affect public policy? What role do the law and courts play in defining gender and addressing gender-based discrimination? How do law and policy shape gender equality and justice in the US? This course examines significant legal and policy issues relating to gender and gender-based discrimination, primarily in the U.S. The legal system shapes gender relations by regulating such matters as work, family, education, pay equity, reproductive rights, military service, violence, and social justice. This course offers students the opportunity to engage in a critical analysis of the relationship between law and gender that is grounded in court decisions and feminist legal scholarship and centered on competing theoretical frameworks of gender equality in a democratic society.

Gender Law and Policy is taught by the Political Science Department. The course can be counted toward the Law and Policy Minor and the major or minor in Women's and Gender Studies.

This course has no prerequisites. Nonetheless, it is an upper-division course, and an introductory understanding of American politics, Law, and/or Women's and Gender Studies will prove helpful.

STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES

After completing this course, you should be able to:

- Identify ways that gender-based stereotypes are reproduced in law
- Explain how gender-specific case law and policy have evolved in the U.S.
- Evaluate the role of law in creating and dismantling discrimination
- Compare and contrast relevant theoretical approaches to gender and law
- Apply one or more theoretical perspectives to specific issues
- Write original, compelling, and well-supported arguments

Political Science Learning Outcomes and Skills you should develop in this course include:

- Recognize the value of theories for making sense of the past and present
- Utilize evidence in a variety of forms to construct arguments
- Accurately and fairly represent the analyses, arguments, and ideas of others
- Recognize and use proper citation methods in academic work

Women's and Gender Studies Learning Outcomes and Skills you should develop in this course include:

- Define and explain the social construction of gender
- Identify and analyze intersecting systems of privilege and oppression in local and global contexts
- Develop and practice communication skills that support and respect the experiences and perspectives of diverse communities
- Apply theoretical frameworks, concepts, and ethics in the fields of Women's and Gender Studies and LGBTQ Studies

Assessing student learning: This course uses a variety of methods, both formative and summative, to assess student learning. Assessment activities include quizzes, discussion assignments, writing assignments, and reflection. There is a final project due the last week of class.

COURSE MATERIALS

Required textbook: Gender Law & Policy, Third Edition, Katharine T. Bartlett, Deborah L. Rhode, Joanna L. Grossman, Deborah L. Brake.

The text is available at the university bookstore. It is also available as an eBook on VitalSource.com. eBooks are offered at different price points for six-month, twelve-month, or lifetime access periods to accommodate students' varying preferences and needs. The eBook is less expensive and includes embedded accessibility options like read to me and linked vocabulary. Both the eBook version of the textbook and Canvas have accessibility features that you may find useful, such as the immersive reader function. You may also find a rental option. As long as you have the 3rd edition, you can choose the format for your text.

ASYNCHRONOUS ONLINE COURSE EXPECTATIONS

This is an asynchronous online course - we do not have any Zoom meeting times. But we do have a weekly schedule of reading and assignments. You need to complete one week before moving to the next. Each new week is available starting the previous Wednesday at 11:59 pm.

There are a variety of activities to complete to reach our learning objectives each week. These activities include reading, online discussions, videos, mini-explanatory lectures, written assignments, quizzes, etc. These assignments have due dates.

Participation: In online courses, your regular participation involves logging in to our course, navigating through the content pages in a module, completing the readings and videos, participating in discussions and other activities, and submitting assignments, and quizzes.

Your participation is an integral part of your learning, but it also contributes to the learning of your peers. As members of our learning community, we are responsible for creating an environment where we can all learn from each other. Depending on the size of our class, you may be placed in a discussion group of about 10 students (give or take) to make our discussions more intimate and manageable. Discussions are automatically tied to your group.

To ensure each member of our course feels included and welcomed, we will abide by a few key rules of etiquette. We will treat each other with dignity and respect while acknowledging that we are unique and have different views and opinions about topics. Some of the topics we cover may elicit strong reactions. To ensure everyone feels comfortable engaging in our discussions, please remember that written communications can be easily misinterpreted. Each time you make a post or reply to a discussion, read it twice before you submit it to ensure the words you have chosen are considerate but also convey your message. If you feel a peer has violated these expectations, don't hesitate to contact me directly; I will tend to your concern in a confidential matter.

Workload: For a three-credit course, the standard number of expected work hours is 9 hours per week. As a rule of thumb, that is 3 hours of lecture (in class with your professor/lecture) and 6 hours of time spent on coursework such as reading, note-taking, and assignments. You have a lot of flexibility with your time during the week. Each week is a module in Canvas that includes an overview highlighting what you need to accomplish in the module. Make yourself a schedule for this course and stay organized and self-motivated to ensure you do not fall behind! I will provide you with reminders and deadlines to keep you on pace to completion.

Technology Requirements: We will use Canvas for class. Set up your Canvas notifications so you do not miss anything! Keep in mind that Canvas does not play that well with Apple. So be sure you are accessing Canvas through Chrome (not Firefox, and not Safari). Canvas only supports some file types (again, not Apple) - MS

Word and PDF are good choices. Most assignments are simply submitted through the Canvas text box, so you just copy and paste your submissions into the text box.

Depending on how you decided to purchase your text(s) for this class (e.g., rental, paper copy, or electronic book), you may have other technical requirements related to your textbook. You have purchase options so that you can do you!

Web-based applications you will use in this course are all provided by UWO. They include Canvas and Microsoft Teams. For any technical problems, make sure you contact the UWO help desk right away!

COURSE POLICIES

Course Schedule: We have a course schedule that we follow over the semester. You can find this schedule in our START HERE module. It is hyperlinked to our modules in Canvas. A non-linked version is at the end of this syllabus for your reference.

The course is organized into weekly modules. Each includes an overview highlighting what you need to accomplish during the week. The week's overview page lists the activities and associated assignments for that week; these must be completed to unlock and move to the next module.

Assignments and Grading: Your final grade in this course will be based on the following weighted assignment groups, using the UWO 93/87/80 grading scale. There are several types of assignments:

- Post-n-Reply discussions [30%] ask you to respond to a discussion prompt and reply to one of your classmate's posts. Your original post is due by the end of Friday, and your reply is expected soon after but ultimately due by the end of Sunday.
- Post-n-Share posts [30%] are discussion board assignments for which you are "sharing" your thinking with the class or group. You can see what your peers wrote after you share your post, but you do not need to reply. Your post is due at the end of Friday.
- Short Quizzes [15%] in Canvas highlight key concepts related to the reading. These are due at the end of Friday.
- Weekly Learning Reflection [15%] allows you to pause and recognize connections between what you already know and what you are learning. It is a way of helping you to become an active, aware, and critical learner. This is due at the end of Sunday each week.
- "Choose your Ending" Project [10%] is a final paper of your choice due at the end of the last week of the semester.

Letter Grade	Percentage Range
A	100%	to 93%
A-	< 93%	to 90%
B+	< 90%	to 87%
B	< 87%	to 83%
B-	< 83%	to 80%
C+	< 80%	to 77%
C	< 77%	to 73%
C-	< 73%	to 70%
D+	< 70%	to 67%
D	< 67%	to 63%
D-	< 63%	to 60%
F	< 60%	to 0%

Your assignments are due on the same days every week to give you some structure and flexibility. Quizzes, Post-n-Reply discussion posts, and Post-n-Share posts are due on Fridays by midnight. Post and Reply discussion replies are ultimately due on Sunday night by midnight, but I recommend you do them soon after you post while the material is fresh in your mind. Weekly learning reflections are also due on Sunday night by midnight. Write your reflection once you have finished the module. So that's two days to remember for due dates - Fridays, and Sundays.

*If you think there is a significant error or you didn't get a grade and don't know why, please let me know immediately (just like you, I miss hitting the "submit" button now and then!).

Turnaround time on graded work: It can be frustrating to wait a long time to receive feedback or to know your grade. For some items, like quizzes, you have instant feedback. Discussions and reflections take some time to get through - expect a one-week turnaround from the due date (ideally less!). You will see rubric comments and often additional comments in your grade book on your written assignments.

Early Alert:

A few weeks into the semester your instructors will send you an early alert message if they think that you are struggling with class. This message will let you know whether your instructors have noticed any academic problems, attendance problems, or both. When you get such a message, it is a chance to address a problem and improve on your work. We suggest meeting with your instructor.

Absences, late work, and accommodations: Plan on submitting work on time. All assignments are due by midnight (11:59 pm) on the scheduled dates. Because this is an asynchronous course, you already have flexibility with your time and should be able to adjust to minor personal and family emergencies; however, if you have a significant illness or another issue that impacts your ability to participate in the course, communicate with me immediately.

Note that assignment deadlines are not flexible. Discussion assignments every week have a key goal of students learning with and from each other. Late assignments compromise this learning goal and affect both your learning and that of your classmates. Student contributions impact the learning process for other students – student-to-student interaction is a requirement of online courses.

You will be submitting all your work on Canvas. Canvas automatically

- assigns a zero on Canvas when the due date/time passes.
- late submissions are automatically subject to a 7% per day late penalty, and the grade overrides the zero once the assignment is graded.

A late penalty can be removed for university-excused absences and for extenuating circumstances that temporarily impact your ability to participate in the course. If you are experiencing extenuating circumstances, you need to communicate with me.

- Excused absences and late work: According to University policy, excused absences require documented evidence of medical necessity or an approved college-sanctioned event. We will work out a schedule for you to complete your work before or after your absence. Zeros and late penalties will be removed once the work is turned in.
- Unexcused absences and late work: The late penalty is 7% per day – it is automatic and will diminish your potential grade to a floor of 65%. This means you can turn in late work and at least get a D and therefore you are always better off submitting something rather than nothing! But there is a limit: all week 1 to week 7 assignments must be submitted before the end of week 7; and all week 8 to week 14 assignments must be submitted before the end of week 14 to get the D rather than a zero.
- Reasonable accommodations are available for students with documented disabilities that may affect their ability to participate in some limited course activities or meet some minor course requirements. Documentation must be on file in the University's "accommodate" system. Both the eBook version of the textbook and Canvas have accessibility features that you may find useful, such as the immersive reader function. For more information on accommodations at UWO, see the Dean of Students website and the Accessibility Center.

Tips for managing online learning and participation

Online learning is different and can be challenging! What's out of sight can often be out of mind. Although you aren't coming to a physical classroom, ensure you stay engaged and on top of your work.

- Create a schedule that works for you. Early each week, review the week's overview page and the "What do to this week" page in the module. Plan your week and schedule consistent blocks of time to work on this class. Just like if you had an in-person class.
- Budget time for working online. You already know it will take you longer to respond to an online discussion than to raise your hand and comment in class - so give yourself time!
- Find a place to focus - avoid shared spaces; let others know when you're working so they leave you alone (or remind you to stay on task!)
- Check Canvas. I will post materials on Canvas, primarily using the announcement tool to post reminders and stay in touch with the class.
- Don't procrastinate! It can be effortless to delay work when you're not physically attending class. Keep up with what's posted in Canvas daily - set up a schedule for yourself so you don't fall behind.
- Ask questions. If you don't understand something, don't sit in silence. Message me, come to office hours, or post a question on our Q-n-A board.

Plagiarism and Academic Honesty: Plagiarism is using someone else's UNIQUE ideas, words, theories, evidence, findings, argument, etc., and passing them off as your own by not properly attributing or acknowledging the original source of those ideas.

Students may inadvertently plagiarize when they fail to provide page numbers for quotations in a paper or when they paraphrase or summarize the work of others without acknowledging the source in the text of their paper. Even "accidental" or "sloppy" plagiarism is widely considered wrong, unethical, and dishonest. If you are unsure whether or not what you have written constitutes plagiarism, ask before you turn it in. If there is an issue, we'll talk.

Artificial Intelligence (AI) can be complicated regarding plagiarism and academic honesty. AI text generators can be useful tools, but they are often prone to factual errors, incorrect or fabricated citations, and misinterpretations of abstract concepts. I have found that Chat GPT (and other AI tools) are not reliable - they often make things up, from names of court cases to academic citations and historical names. Do not rely on AI to be correct! AI is permitted in this course under certain circumstances as a tool but should be used cautiously. Moreover, AI programs are not a replacement for human creativity, originality, and critical thinking. These are skills that you must develop over time.

- The use of AI tools is permitted in this course to:
  - Brainstorm and try out ideas.
  - Fine-tune research questions.
  - Draft an outline to organize your thoughts.
  - Check grammar and style.
- The use of AI tools is NOT permitted in this course to:
  - Impersonate you in classroom contexts, such as by using the tool to compose discussion posts or replies.
  - Write entire sentences, paragraphs, or papers to complete class assignments.

Remember that you are responsible for the content of any work submitted for this course. This includes the information you submit based on an AI query such that it does not violate intellectual property laws, contain misinformation, or unethical content. Your use of AI must be properly documented and cited to stay within university policies on academic integrity. Any assignment that is found to have used generative AI tools in unauthorized ways runs afoul of the academic integrity expectations.

See the Dean of Students' resources on plagiarism for more information about how we address these issues at UWO. This class uses Turnitin technology to help you and me detect plagiarism issues and the use of AI.

Citations: Your written work should always demonstrate that you have read the material, that you understand it, and that you can apply concepts and support your reasoning. Use your textbook and course materials for support.

In all your written work for this course, you must cite your sources (even course material). If you are a political science major, the Political Science Department has writing resources for you, including a citation style guide. UWO Libraries also has citation help.

COURSE SCHEDULE OF READINGS AND ACTIVITIES

We have a course schedule that we will follow over the course of the semester. The basic schedule is reproduced below. In Canvas, this schedule includes hyperlinks to our weekly pages with detailed plans and additional resources for each week. If anything changes in our schedule, I will inform you via announcements.

I have structured the course with lots of reminders and deadlines to keep you on pace to completion. You should sign up for Canvas notifications to ensure you do not miss class announcements and reminders.

Each week has its own module in Canvas, and each module is structured the same way with consistent assignments and due dates to help you structure your time. These include:

- A video overview of the week
  - Learning objectives for the week
  - Assigned reading
  - Related learning resources (e.g. a video mini-lecture, a video discussion to preview your readings, a concept explainer page, multimedia resources)
  - Group discussion(s) assignments (post and reply and post and share - posts are always due on Fridays, and replies are always due on Sundays)
  - Short reading Quiz(zes) (always due Fridays)
  - Reflection on your learning process (always due Sunday night)

- Final Paper (choice) - Due Dec. 15th

POLITICAL SCIENCE DEPARTMENT POLICIES

Office Hours: The Political Science Department uses Microsoft Teams (MS Teams) for holding office hours. This system is available to all UWO students. Your Poli Sci faculty are available during their posted office hours (whether you are taking an in-person or an online class). To use MS Teams during office hours, send a chat to your instructor to let them know you want to meet - think of that as the equivalent of knocking on the door. We're here for you! Please use our office hours freely and often. Many faculty are also happy to set up meetings outside of office hours if students have conflicts with the posted times.

Expectations for Academic Honesty: A college education is intended to develop your skills, knowledge, and confidence. Graded assignments are designed to work on these items. Thus, to gain the skills, knowledge, and confidence of a college-educated person, all graded work is to be your own. When you are directed to work alone, an assignment or test must be done by you, its primary ideas are to be your own, and any outside materials should be dealt with appropriately (quoted when using someone's words and cited when quoting or referencing them in any other way). When you are asked to work in teams, that work should be done by the group collaboratively. More information can be found here.

Concerns or Grievances: The Department of Political Science is committed to offering you a high-quality classroom or online experience, and we take your feedback very seriously. If you have concerns about anything related to this course, assignments, or teaching method, you are encouraged to first speak with your instructor directly. If you are uncomfortable speaking with the instructor, you are invited to speak with the Chair of the Department of Political Science, Dr. Tracy Slagter. She can be reached at slagtert@uwosh.edu. Should she be unable to resolve your concerns, she will guide you to appropriate resources within the College of Letters and Science.

Note to Political Science Majors: Congratulations on joining a great major - the world needs your critical thinking, creative problem-solving, knowledge of the issues, and stellar communication skills!

Political Science majors should take Political Methodology (245) in either their sophomore year or the first semester of their junior year. If you have questions about this requirement, your course schedule, possible internships, or career preparation, please reach out to your faculty adviser. Students are encouraged to meet with their faculty advisers at least once per year. If you are unsure who your adviser is, you can check TitanWeb or email Ms. Angelee Hammond at hammond@uwosh.edu.

Changes: If substantive changes are made to this course syllabus, such as changes in schedule or assignments, notification will be provided promptly, and a revised syllabus will be made available.

UNIVERSITY RESOURCES

I want you to be successful! There are many student resources dedicated to your academic and personal success.

UW Oshkosh strives to create inclusive learning environments. Reasonable accommodations are available for students with documented disabilities that may affect their ability to participate in course activities or meet course requirements. For more information, see the Dean of Students website and the Accessibility Center.

If you have any situation/condition, either permanent or temporary, that might affect your ability to perform in this class or access class assignments; please reach out to me so that we can work together on a plan for your success. Canvas is an ADA-compliant course management software suite. Both Canvas and our textbook have accessibility features that you may find helpful such as the immersive reader function.

Diversity drives innovation, creativity, and progress. At the University of Wisconsin Oshkosh, the culture, identities, life experiences, unique abilities, and talents of every individual contribute to the foundation of our success. Creating and maintaining an inclusive and equitable environment is of paramount importance to us. This pursuit prepares all of us to be global citizens who will contribute to the betterment of the world. We are committed to a university culture that provides everyone with the opportunity to thrive.

By federal regulations set forth by The Higher Education Act of 1965 (amended in 1998), consumer information is available to all students at the University of Wisconsin Oshkosh.
